

U. S. NAVY SEIZES TWO ITALIAN ISLANDS

Meandering
Along the

By WASH FAYETTE

I just had a brief note from Rodney Gragg, one of the best known citizens of Bainbridge, who operates an "Old Time Country Store" in Bainbridge and also deals in antiques, including rare glass, etc. and who is known to many Fayette countians.

Rodney writes that "Uncle Jimmy" Sylvester, Christian Union minister, landed a 42 pound shovelhead catfish in Paint Creek, which everyone agrees is some catfish, even for a minister to land.

Now some of the Fayette County anglers have taken some pretty good sized shovelheads out of Paint Creek, at the "Basin" and below the Falls, as well as at other points, but few of them have ever landed a granddaddy shovelhead as large as the one "ketch'd" by the preacher.

Before I opened Rodney's letter I was tickled all over by what he had stapled to the back of the envelope. It was a slip of paper bearing the picture of a fish, and this very truthful saying, which was certainly apropos of the fish story inside:

"Even a Fish Can Keep Out of Trouble If He Keeps His Mouth Closed." When I opened the letter and read it, I could not help but roar with laughter. I was thinking how that big shovelhead would still be swimming about in the placid waters of Paint Creek if he had just kept his mouth closed! That saying certainly applies to the human family as well as to the other poor fish.

R. R. (Railroad) Kibler, former B. and O. agent at this point for several years, but who for many years has been agent of the B. and O. at Johnstown, Pa., was in the office Wednesday.

(Some of you older folks recall that more than a half century ago a dam burst and flooded Johnstown, taking hundreds of lives and nearly wiping out the city.)

R. R.'s visit here is the first in a number of years.

I never see R. R. but what I think of one night while he was agent here, when the mercury stood near the zero mark and an eight inch snow covered the ground. I went with him on a relief train made up here, to Orient, where two freight trains had met head-on, killing the engineer and fireman of one engine and injuring other members of the train crew.

I vividly recall the wreck because one of the freights was loaded with livestock, chiefly cattle, and about 60 head of the cattle had been killed or mangled so that it was necessary to kill them.

Moaning cattle, with legs or backs broken, huge holes torn in their bodies, and struggling in the bitter cold, were lying about on all sides, and the snow was roved with blood from the maimed animals.

I saw the fireman, crushed to death between the engine and tender, with his head and shoulders protruding above the coal that nearly covered him. I helped lift the moaning engineer into the baggage car of the relief train. (He died a few hours later.)

But what impressed me more than the death of the two men was the suffering of the dumb, helpless cattle, lying in the snow, slowly bleeding and freezing to death.

However, that is just one of the innumerable incidents that come to a newspaper man, and all goes with the day's work.

LAKE STEAMER DISABLED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The passenger steamer Eastern States, bound from Detroit to Buffalo with approximately 500 passengers and crew, today was disabled by engine trouble about 45 miles northeast of Cleveland harbor.

The Great Lakes Towing Co. said the tug's California and Louisiana had been sent to the aid of the lake steamer, operated by the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Co. The vessel will be towed into Cleveland.

FARM PROBLEMS UP TO FARMERS, LINCOLN SAYS

Ohio Farm Bureau Official Tells Victory Rally Not To Lean on Government

CO-OPERATIVES STRESSED

Direct Contact With Urban Workers Advocated To 'Go Around Monopolies'

BATAVIA, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, urged 5,000 southwestern Ohio farm people yesterday to try to work out their own problems rather than expect the government to do it for them.

Lincoln told a farmers' victory rally at the Clermont County fairgrounds in nearby Owensville, "when you ask the government to do something for you, you put the government in a position to do something to you."

"In the past," he said, "We have been too anxious to get a dole rather than solve our own problems. It's not wise to blame the government for the present farm situation. We ought to blame ourselves for not taking action ourselves 15 or 20 years ago."

He urged establishment of co-operatives as "tools to fashion our own destinies."

Predicting that labor unions would turn to co-operatives, he said, "then farmers can deal direct with urban working people and go around the monopolies in milk, packing, and so forth."

Lincoln, a delegate to the recent international food conference, said the United States would provide technical leadership for other countries after the war.

"We won't put a quart of milk on every hottenot's doorstep," Lincoln said, "but we'll help him produce it for himself."

FOOD SUBSIDY PLAN IS EXPECTED SOON

Cut in Living Costs To Cost Millions of Dollars

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Ranking officials predicted today the administration's new cost of living subsidy plan would be in operation before congress returns next month but it will be necessary for the lawmakers to provide the wherewithal.

Because existing subsidies were spared the congressional ax only through a presidential veto, the expectation had grown that the administration would sidestep further subsidies without an okay by congress.

However since James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization, has promised a substantial cut in the cost of living, other officials let it be known a new subsidy plan was about to be unveiled.

While details are highly secret, it is estimated the cost to the government will range from $300,000,000 to over $1,000,000.

PRESIDENTIAL RACE CONSIDERED IN OHIO

Iowan Asks for Papers for Seeking Nomination

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel said today he had received a request from George J. Callahan of Ames, Ia., for "proper application papers for filing for president of the United States" as the first step in contesting for Ohio's delegation at the 1944 National Republican convention.

Hummel said the request was the first received for next year's campaign.

Gov. John W. Bricker is regarded in political quarters as a potential presidential candidate.

Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican nominee, recently implied during a Cleveland interview he might contest for Ohio delegates, but he has announced no definite commitment.

Italy's Surrender Hinted By King In Message To Sicily

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—King Vittorio Emanuele told Sicilians in a proclamation broadcast by the Rome radio today that the present isolation of Sicily from the rest of Italy "will not last for long," and he made no mention of continued prosecution of the war.

The broadcast of the unbeligerent proclamation was recorded by the Associated Press.

The king opened his message by recalling that Premier Pietro Badoglio and former premier Vittorio Emanuele Orlando previously had addressed the Italian people.

"I have lived with you this terrible moment," he continued. "I have heard your voice. I have understood your sufferings."

"Italians of Sicily, your king is near you."

"I have faith in a better future. I know that you are faithful to me and to my reigning house. We are now cut off one from the other, but this will not last for long."

ATTACK ON CANCER MAKING PROGRESS

Three Chemicals Found for New Treatment

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Discovery of three chemicals which damage malignant cancer without doing equal harm to healthy tissues was announced today in the annual report of Memorial Hospital, one of the world's leading cancer institutes.

The difference is slight, not enough to make any of the three useful for human beings. Nevertheless the discovery is of tremendous importance for it is a definite proof of the possibility that a drug can damage cancer more than other tissues.

It is possible, the report says, to synthesize all sorts of new chemicals similar to one of the three. This one is not identified, beyond the fact that it is not too toxic, that it is not poisonous to human beings.

Some of the new chemicals which can be made, the report goes on, ought to have a more powerful action, ought to damage cancer cells still more, and healthy tissues still less.

COAL MINES IN OHIO TO BE TURNED BACK

First Step Toward Ending Government Operation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes has listed five non-striking coal mines in Ohio, West Virginia and Alabama for return to private ownership.

The first step toward ending government possession and operation of the mines was expected to be announced today by the office of war information. Pending the official announcement by OWI, Ickes' coal mine administration declined to identify the mines or comment on the action.

ANOTHER SECRET WEAPON PROMISED BY GOEBBELS

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Paul Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda chief, promised the German people today a new secret weapon may soon give them relief from Allied air raids.

"The new weapon against aerial war imposed upon us by the enemy is under construction," he wrote in his weekly article in the propaganda publication Das Reich. "Day and night innumerable busy hands are engaged in its completion."

GENERAL NOT DEAD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—War Department records showed today that an Associated Press dispatch received yesterday from Allied headquarters in North Africa reporting the death of Gen. Louis Marie Koeltz, commander of the French Nineteenth Army Corps, was erroneous.

War To Finish Against Japs After Hitler Is Knocked Out Is Planned At Allied Council

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

QUEBEC, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The Quebec War Conference, driving forward to advance the zero hour for invasion of the European continent, produced today a strong official indication that tremendous new operations against Japan also were in the making.

Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, was the first high participant in the war council to give any inkling of what was going on behind the guarded portals of Quebec's citadel, where President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are mapping strategy which may settle the fate of the world.

"These plans," Bracken told a press conference last night, "are to bomb and burn and ruthlessly destroy, in every way available to us, the people responsible for creating this war."

His words were sufficiently inclusive to embrace not only the foe in Europe but also Japan, and he underscored them by declaring that "it's all one war."

"I think the war is going very well indeed," the British cabinet member asserted, "but it will last a long time and be a very hard war."

"When we have rounded up Mr. Hitler, the whole might of the British Empire will be given over to the task of dealing with the Japanese, who are a ruthless, savage people."

"We will not lay down our arms until we have completely conquered Japan. The war won't be over until Japan has reaped the

WRIGHT PLANT PRODUCTION OFF AFTER CRITICISM

Senate Investigators Hint Slow Up Deliberate To Justify Contentions

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Major Gen. Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of air staff, Washington, testified today that production of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant in nearby Lockland fell to one-sixth its former pace after release of Truman committee charges that defective engines were being turned out.

Echols, also head of the Army Air Force procurement staff, said as a Truman Senate investigating committee hearing got under way that the company management tried to blame the army for interfering with production by requiring a "too rigid inspection procedure" and an effort to get a high degree of interchangeability in the engine parts.

Campaign Of Sabotage In Denmark Reported To Be Slowing Nazis

By JOHN H. COLBURN

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 20.—(AP)—A determined, country-wide campaign of sabotage, apparently aimed at destroying land and sea transport facilities used by the Nazis to supply their forces in Norway was reported by travelers arriving here from Denmark today.

Danish patriots, the travelers said, are systematically wrecking Danish factories producing German war materials as well as railroads and harbor installations which have become increasingly important to the Germans since they no longer can ship men and supplies across Sweden to Norway.

STATE PAYS MORE FOR LIQUOR, CLAIM

Explanation Is Demanded by State Auditor

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—(AP)—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said today the State Liquor Department paid a liquor broker $10 a case more for liquor than five Ohio permit holders paid for the same brand at the same time, and asked for an explanation.

In a letter to Liquor Director Don Fisher, the auditor said the permit holders bought a total of 300 cases of Cordon Rouge Portuguese brandy from the Star Liquor Dealers, Inc., of Long Island, N. Y., at $27.43 a case. Consents for the purchases were issued by the liquor department on May 20 and 21.

On May 24, Ferguson set forth in his letter, the liquor department contracted for 5,000 cases of the same brand from The William Bauer Co. of Cleveland at $38.68 a case. Deducting a two percent discount and free shipment to Ohio, the difference amounted to about $10 a case, or slightly above $50,000, Ferguson said.

At the same time representatives of the five major Danish political parties were called into extraordinary session in Copenhagen, apparently to consider changes in the government's policy toward Nazi occupation of Denmark.

Possibility of a switch in government leaders was seen as a result of the conclave.

Meanwhile disorders were reported mounting, travelers bringing word of clashes between patriots and German soldiers in Odense. They said a railroad line transporting German war supplies for shipment to Norway had been dynamited at several places between Flensburg, Germany and Aarhus, Denmark.

Reports reaching Malmo said that 15 German soldiers were killed in riots which forced the authorities to clamp down an 8 P. M. curfew on most of the Funen Island district.

Italian headquarters said fleets of Allied four-engine bombers, heavily escorted, inflicted "very great damage" in raids on the mainland cities of Foggia and Salerno and also struck at targets along the Vesuvian Riviera. It said 44 Allied planes were shot down by Axis anti-aircraft batteries and "in very violent air duels."

Allied Middle East headquarters said U. S. Liberators and RAF Halifaxes bombed the port of Crotone, on the arch of the Italian boot, and other United Nations airmen pounded the harbor of Heraklion in Crete.

Poles All Set To Aid Allies

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Two tough Polish armies bearing equipment supplied by the United States and Britain and containing powerful artillery and parachute units are set to spring against the Axis in Europe when the signal for the Allied invasion is given.

The Polish government-in-exile here, disclosing the existence of these forces yesterday, said their nucleus was formed by survivors of the Polish army which nearly was wiped out when the Nazis stormed through Poland in September, 1939, and the Poles lost 902,095 men in killed, wounded and missing.

Lieut.-Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, 51-year-old hero of the battle of Poland, who was wounded three times, is in command of one army of some 80,000 men based in the middle east. The other force, with undisclosed thousands of men, is stationed in Britain.

BIG NEW GAPS ARE BLASTED IN INVASION GATE

Air and Naval Guns Hurl Added Destruction Into Toe of Italian Boot

Violent Air Fight Rages

Russians, Meanwhile, Throw Back Attacking Germans; Berlin Bombed Again

By ROGER GREENE

U. S. naval forces have seized the islands of Lipari and Stromboli to control the sea area between Sicily and lower Italy, headquarters announced today, as Allied air and sea power tore great new gaps in Italy's vital railway system.

Stupendous air assaults shattered the industrial and railway city of Foggia, across the peninsula from Naples and 20 miles inland from the Adriatic Sea, in one of the heaviest raids of the Mediterranean war. Fortresses, Liberators, Wellingtons and their escorts knocked down 34 enemy fighters in battles there.

Occupation of volcanic Lipari and Stromboli Tuesday morning put the entire Aeolian island group in Allied hands. Stromboli is only 37 miles from Cape Vaticano on the Italian mainland, and Lipari is 35 miles northwest of Messina in Sicily.

British warships teamed with air power in the hammer blows to disrupt Italy's rail system—a key of Italian defense—by pumping tons of shells into Scalea, on the west coast of the Calabrian peninsula.

Wave upon wave of heavy British and American bombers concentrating upon Foggia struck industrial and communications areas in saturation raids typical of attacks that wrecked every important target in Sicily.

U. S. Liberators from the Middle East joined in the day and night attacks on the city, 160 miles southeast of Rome.

Medium bombers blasted at Sapri and Salerno, south of Naples, and fighter-bombers went after the important communications point at Catanzaro, on the sole of Italy's boot.

They shot down five more Axis fighters, and destruction of still another during the night brought the Allied bag for the period to 40.

Seventeen Allied planes were lost during all activities.

Dispatches from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said big shells hurtled steadily across the two-mile-wide Strait of Messina between Sicily and the toe of the Italian boot as American and British field batteries slammed away at enemy fortifications, while 15-inch Axis coastal guns replied with 2,400-pound projectiles.

"Naval activity continues on both coasts of the Calabrian peninsula (Italy's toe) and on the eastern shore of the Straits of Messina," Gen. Eisenhower's command said.

Besides torrents of steel and explosives unleashed by Allied land and sea batteries, waves of Allied bombers concentrated their fire on enemy troops and guns hidden in the mountain along the Calabrian shore. Thirty-four enemy aircraft were shot down, it was announced.

Italian headquarters said fleets of Allied four-engine bombers, heavily escorted, inflicted "very great damage" in raids on the mainland cities of Foggia and Salerno and also struck at targets along the Vesuvian Riviera. It said 44 Allied planes were shot down by Axis anti-aircraft batteries and "in very violent air duels."

LT. 'BILL' REESE IS MISSING IN ACTION, REPORT

Bombardier, Son of Former School Head Here—Had Been Twice Decorated

First Lieutenant W. L. (Bill) Reese, one of the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Reese, now in the country's armed forces, is "missing in action."

The bare notification that he has been missing since August 1 came to his parents, who now live in Columbus, from the War Department yesterday. The telegram gave no details but friends who talked with them said they believed that it was from the great Allied raid on the Nazi-held oil fields in Rumania that their son's plane failed to return.

Bill Reese was one of the stars of the WHS football teams during the years he was in school here when his father was the city school head. He was one of the most popular boys in school with his classmates. After his graduation from high school, he entered Ohio State University to study agriculture and with hopes of spending his life on the farm. But, the war interfered and he enlisted in the early summer of 1942 in the Army Air Forces and applied for training as a bombardier. He received his commission in March of this year and went overseas in June.

Letters received by his family were necessarily sketchy because of censorship but it was known that he had made a number of bombing flights over Germany, probably including the big one on Berlin, while based in England.

He had been awarded the Air Medal for conspicuous service and decorated with the Oak Leaf Cluster later in a second citation for outstanding bravery, according to word from the fighting front.

It is understood that he was the commander of the bombing group to which he was assigned and that the pilot of his bomber was a lieutenant colonel.

Just when he was transferred to the African theater of war is not known but one of the last letters received from him by his parents indicated he was based close to the fighting front during the Sicilian campaign in a town which had been the center of some of the bitterest fighting of the war there.

He had been on one of America's big Liberators. The Reeses' younger son, Bob, is now at West Point, where he is taking special streamlined officer training.

"Every ounce of strength we've got we intend to use against Japan."

He gave a hint, too, that the strength probably would be brought to bear, at the times and places dictated by high Allied strategy won in the making, by death dealing sea and sky fleets.

"As you know," he said, "we have some good sailors and accomplished bombers."

Nevertheless, whatever may be the battle plans for the Pacific, events in Europe, where Russia continues to grind down German opposition in the east, dictate that the Allied high command center its urgent attention on taking the utmost advantage of that situation to drain off Nazi strength through amphibious assaults in the west.

RUSSIA'S VIEWS
MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The magazine "War and the Working Class" states in an editorial titled "Quebec and the Soviet Union" that "Quebec is serving the interests of the Anglo-American forces and expresses their opinion, but still does not express the opinion of the entire Anglo-Soviet-American coalition."

"The Soviet Union has only one opinion," the article said. "The time is ripe to change over from words to actions. The time is ripe to inflict a decisive blow from the east and the west."

The article called for a three-power conference which would both cut down the length of the war and prepare the peace on the basis of friendly collaboration of the Allies.

The committee charges, denied by Guy W. Vaughn, president of the parent Curtiss-Wright Corp., included an assertion that some parts leaked gasoline. Vaughn asserted that the company never sold products "known to the company to have contained defective or substandard parts."

EUROPEAN AIR WAR—RAF Mosquito bombers hit Berlin, capping raids by U. S. Flying Fortresses against four of Germany's most important air bases in Holland and France.

Intruders last night attacked railway and airfield targets in France and Belgium.

Vlissingen (Flushing) and Gilze-Rijen in Holland were battered by American Flying Fortresses late yesterday afternoon and 34 enemy fighters were shot down by the big bombers and their escorts of U. S. and Allied Thunderbolts and Spitfires, the communique said.

The Fortresses accounted for 16 enemy fighters and their escorts knocked down 18, the bulletin declared. Good bombing results were reported on both targets.

Four bombers and two fighters

U. S. Raiders earlier in the day had blasted Nazi airfields at Poix and Amiens-Glisy in France. The Americans spearheaded the thrusts, with the British planes following with a second pounding of the airfields at Poix.

ROTARIANS TO HEAR GERMAN REFUGEE

'I Had To Do Business Under Hitler,' To Be Topic

"I Had To Do Business Under Hitler" is the subject of an address to be delivered before Rotarians and their guests next Tuesday noon at the club's weekly luncheon at the Country Club, by Leonard Guenther, who says that he is a German Christian refugee. He has been making talks before various organizations all over the country.

Guenther came to the United States directly from Germany just before the outbreak of war. He applied for his first papers of citizenship the first day he landed in America and states he soon will be awarded his American citizenship.

Born and educated in Germany with Ph.D and Jur.D degrees, he was a corporation counsel for a German branch of a Swiss business organization. Although classified as a "non-Aryan" due to the fact that he proudly says he is of half Jewish blood, his Swiss employer obtained a temporary permit to employ him until 1938. Thus he has observed five years of totalitarian life as a close eyewitness.

He is said to be able to give a vivid description of the business, financial and military problems in Nazi-Germany.

Abandonment of Berlin
By Nazis Government Shows
How Allied Attack Feared

One of the most interesting pieces of news to come out of Germany since the war began—and it's one of the most important, if true—is the report that the whole Nazi government has abandoned Berlin.

While this is unconfirmed, it does come on the heels of the evacuation of a million residents of the threatened capital. Maybe Hitler's infallible intuition has enabled him to read the Allied program which has been set forth at Quebec by British Minister of Information Brendan Bracken thus pointedly:

"These plans are to bomb and burn and ruthlessly destroy, in every way available to us, the people responsible for creating this war."

One could wish, by the way, that the Fuehrer might have heard Bracken deliver that edict. I wasn't present, but I know the minister as one of England's most colorful personalities. He's a big chap who pours out conviction in a torrent of forceful words, while his victim is held fascinated by the brilliant red hair which flares up from Bracken's head like the flames from a blast furnace. Yes, it's a pity Hitler wasn't there.

For any normal government—which, of course the Nazi regime is not—desertion of the national capital is like abandonment of ship at sea. It's an act that denotes desperation.

Thus the head of a government and his chief ministers cling to their capital as a sea captain sticks to his bridge. They're among the last to leave. When they do go, it means they have small hope that the first city of the nation will survive.

During the height of the terrible aerial blitz which London endured in 1940-41, when the British ship of state was wallowing in mountainous seas, the square-jawed Churchill and his cabinet stuck to the bridge. True, some archives and subordinate offices were moved out of London, but for the Prime Minister and his government to flee the capital would have been regarded as an admission of defeat, both at home and abroad.

Back in 1941 when Hitler's victorious armies were surging towards Moscow, the Soviet authorities moved the diplomatic corps to Kuibyshev. But Stalin and the other members of the Red government coolly carried on at the old stand, as an inspiration and a guarantee of security to the peoples of all the Russias.

Now nobody suggests for a moment that if Hitler and his government have moved, or do move, it's because of cowardice. The Germans are brave enough.

Abandonment of the German capital would mean (1) that Berlin is in peril of destruction, and (2) that the Prussian militarists are exhibiting one of their outstanding characteristics—a disinclination to risk their necks unless it's absolutely necessary.

We have an illustration of this characteristic in the Prussian military policy that German officers shall not lead their men into battle, excepting in case of necessity. That tough task is left to the non-commissioned officers. The reason given for this is that officers are difficult to replace, and so should direct operations from behind the lines where they won't get killed.

There are, of course, variations to this. German officers will fight quick enough and hard enough if it's necessary. When the non-comers are out of action, the officers jump in and do their bit. Indeed, some like Marshal Rommel lead their men into action from preference. But those cases are the exception. The Prussian is a wholly cold-blooded individual who places small value on the other fellow's life, but likes to avoid trouble himself.

Anyway, while the Prussian wouldn't stick by his capital the way a Briton or a Yankee or a Russian would, neither would he desert it unless it were in grave peril. If Hitler and his government are taking cover we may be sure that Germany's war crisis is indeed acute. This isn't to suggest that the Nazis are on the point of surrendering for there's bitter fighting ahead.

SENATOR BYRD'S VIEWS

The peril in which American democracy stands is analyzed in a new light by Senator Harry F. Byrd, the distinguished Virginian who is rendering valuable service to the cause of national economy. Writing in a well known magazine, he points out that the powers which Congress granted to the President as an emergency measure to deal with the depression and the war are being exercised in a manner which has the effect of both subordinating and belittling Congress.

The question is whether Congress as now constituted can recover the powers which it so unwisely delegated. "Here is what is likely to happen," Senator Byrd says. "Congress will pass a law that the people want, but which Washington executives don't like. It probably will take away some of their powers, interfere with some of their expensive economic experiments, deprive bureaus of their authority to push you around for no good reason. And the President will veto it."

"Then will come the test, the struggle to decide whether the people shall rule or whether the New Deal shall rule. For, remember, it takes a vote of two-thirds of each House to override a presidential veto. A majority vote of the representatives of the people isn't enough to pass the laws they want—if the administration objects. That's how near we are to dictatorship."

Obviously the defense is what Senator Byrd recommends. The people "must restore Congress to its proper place as the only lawmaking body." And they can do that only by electing Senators and Representatives who will override enough vetoes to recover the constitutional power of Congress. Thus the safeguarding of American democracy is up to the people. And, as Senator Byrd concludes, "If we don't do that, why are we fighting the war?"

WARTIME BIRTH RATE

Our participation in the war thus far has brought about a considerable increase in both the marriage rate and the birth rate. When the records are complete 1942 will show close to 3,000,000 births, an all-time high, and 1943 is doing pretty well.

This, unfortunately, is going to stop, and very soon. How far the reaction will go is difficult to foresee. William Fielding Ogburn in an article for the Public Affairs committee, "War, Babies and the Future," points out that by 1919 World War I had caused a 10 percent drop in births, although only two million men ever got overseas and little more than double that number were in uniform. We now have more than eight million in service and are working toward a goal of 11 or 12 million. Already almost as many are overseas, or soon will be, as the total men in service in World War I.

So, beginning soon and continuing as long as we maintain armies across the oceans and a mammoth navy on the Seven Seas, the new generation is going to be below normal in size if not in quality. Professor Ogburn believes that the quality of the racial stock will not be affected. He is a leading sociologist and probably knows. Many will continue to fear, how-

Newsboy Delivers in Italy

STEBENVILLE.—Sgt. George (Billy) Glessner, tail-gunner on a U. S. bomber, is probably the first American "newsboy" to be decorated for bravery after delivering his papers.

Out on a raiding expedition over Sicily, Glessner dropped a copy of the Stebenville Herald-Star from the skies over the Italian mainland.

Wounded on the trips, the "newsy" had told Capt. Jack Preble, fellow member of his Mediterranean bomber squadron and former Herald-Star staff member, "he would like to be the first newsboy to deliver a Herald-Star to Italy."

"He delivered the paper all right," Preble reported, "but he got shot up doing it."

Glessner was awarded the Purple Heart and Oak Leaf Cluster for bravery in the sky battle which followed delivery of his newspaper.

2. Marie Peary, daughter of Admiral Peary, who was born in the Arctic circle.
3. Prince Albert of England who became Edward VII.

ever, that with the best of America's young manhood away from home, we can hardly expect as many sound and normal babies as usual, on the average.

About 1949 or 1950 we shall begin to notice the effects of this war-born depression in babies. There will be less children in the schools. About 1960, unless there is a shift in educational habits, the colleges will find their classes smaller. Beginning then, and for the next few years—how long must depend upon the time it takes us to whip Hitler and Tojo, and the manpower it costs us—industry and trade will be affected by the falling off in new recruits.

History, as reported by Professor Ogburn, indicates that this drop in births never will be completely compensated for. When the men in service return—some to brides they left behind and others to sweethearts who are waiting to become brides—there will be more than the normal birth rate. But it will not overtake the lag that is about to set in.

And, as a thought, if this is the discouraging picture for the United States, what does the continent of Europe have to look forward to?

NOT MANY AROUND HERE

If you are among those hoarders who have created a bottleneck in $10,000 bills, please desist. The Treasury is getting worried. There are less than 2200 in circulation.

You have no real need of $10,000 notes. They may be a bit more convenient to carry than, say, $1,000 notes, but it is still possible to get the makings of Sunday dinner for no more than a normally healthy man and his wife can take to market in the smaller denomination. So please don't hoard $10,000 bills.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — When some months ago, a movie showed a battered, crash-landed bomber being rebuilt out of junk scattered over a bomb-pitted airfield in the Philippine jungles, and taking off to fight again, the skeptics pooh-poohed it as pure Hollywood.

The skeptics hadn't heard of Madame Lily (nor has any one else in this country until now, because the story came in a private letter from a station manager at a base in North Africa, where one of TWA's intercontinental groups, under contract to the Air Transport command, is helping to keep the military airlines open).

Madame Lily is a Flying Fortress, but she was a very ungladly cly when the ATC's TWA ground crew found her. For three months she had been grounded as a wreck. She had been stripped of everything that was movable—mostly for use on other planes.

Even the instruments had been pulled off the panels and wiring jerked out.

After the crew first moved into this base, and when every plane, truck and even armored car in the neighborhood had been put back in working order, there was no place to go and nothing to do.

If aviation ground crews have any phobia, it's idleness. A few days of it and the bored crew started speculating on whether they could get Madame Lily in the air again. Then they went to work.

What that gang did to Madame Lily is a mechanical saga that no aircraft engineer in this country would believe.

They installed two completely "new" engines with parts from A20s, B26s, and P40s. They put in a left main wheel and gear rebuilt from a wrecked B17.

The instrument wiring, panel and instruments they borrowed from junk piles of wrecked P40s and B26s. When they heard about a B17 cracking up badly at the next shuttle base, they persuaded an Army captain to bring them back the oil temperature regulator.

Out of scrap, they made the tail wheel retracting gear, cowl flaps, door hinges, tail assembly parts, tubing, hose and, goodness knows what.

Then, on July 3, five members of the crew were reassigned. One of them brought out the letter, telling the story of Madame Lily, and finally it found its way back to Washington. "Madame Lily" still needed a few days work and a few small parts—and the Army had promised that these men and the others could go along on her test flight. All they can talk about today is that they didn't get to stay for that momentous occasion.

Madame Lily is probably blasting the Nazis right now—a flying monument to junk and the ingenuity of one of those ground crews of which there are none better in the world today.

organic types. I have known several people with "good hearts" who have made a mess of their own and their family's lives.

So with intestinal fortitude. Lots of people have intestines which run away but come back to fight another day. I am speaking of the people who euphemistically and in the most polite circles are referred to as having irritable colons.

Now this simply means that their colons are not made of iron, but of flesh and blood. It means that their colons shy off a little when put through the routine of showing the visiting fireman the town Saturday night. The visiting fireman has no irritable colon—where his large intestine ought to be is something in between a Flying Fortress and festung Europa.

Glutton for Punishment

Saturday night they start at Good Charley's, eat a shovelful of those sandwiches made of hard-boiled eggs, and the other kind made of tough, coiled-up fish, then go on to a good roasting dinner at the Kansas City Steak Joint and after visiting a few hot spots wind up at the Dirty Spoon for a few waffles, doughnuts, wheat cakes and coffee.

Instead of jeering at the fellow with an irritable colon after a night like this, you ought to compliment his colon on showing great common sense in getting rid of the dregs of the evening's debauch.

The treatment of the irritable-colon patient, then, is fairly simple. First is psychological. He must get it through his dome he is not a visiting fireman type. It sometimes takes a long time to do this. The other part of the treatment is dietary. Eat the things that are simple to digest and do not subject your digestive system to a test of strength with Nature's most durable foods.

Breads and Cereals: White bread; crackers; white rice; spaghetti; noodles; macaroni; cream of wheat; (exclude whole wheat products, bran or other forms of cellulose).

Vegetables: Mashed potatoes; puree of peas; beans; asparagus; beets; carrots.

Fruits: Ripe bananas; strained orange juice; strained tomato juice.

Desserts: Custard; gelatin, rice pudding; cornstarch pudding; sponge cake; angel food cake; blancmange.

Sources of Protein: Cottage cheese; American cheese; cream cheese; eggs; chicken (white meat); fish; scraped beef; cream soups.

Other Foods: Salt; butter; olive oil.

Answer: Dr. Donald Munro, a well-known neurosurgeon of Boston, wrote on June 3, 1943, "Pulp stones, malocclusion, apical infections and pyorrhea cause equally severe facial pain."

E. L. H.: Can all vegetables be eaten by a person having gallbladder trouble? Should they be cooked?

Answer: The only foods that affect the gallbladder are fats. So vegetables are all right cooked or raw.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

WHEN MARTIN reminded Karen, in explanation of the diathermy machine in his trailer, that he had come south partly because of his health, she took it as an opening to ask the question that had been bothering her in regard to him for some time.

She said, "Yes, you did tell me that, Martin, and I was thinking, not long ago, how well you are looking, fattened out and sun-tanned. Your health is not so bad that it would keep you from being drafted, is it?" Sue knew that was rather an abrupt way of putting her question, but she simply had to know what Marty was going to do about the war, if he did not mean to do his part in it.

That scowl appeared between his nice blue eyes once more. His answer was as abrupt as her question. "How should I know? I haven't been asked to pass a physical—recently."

"But if you did pass, you . . . you'd go, wouldn't you?" Maybe he was sensitive on this matter of his health; certainly he was not acting naturally; never before had Martin been so abrupt and withdrawn from her.

"I'd have to go or go to jail, or a conscientious objector's camp, I believe."

"But you aren't an objector . . . you'd want to go, if you were physically able, wouldn't you, Marty?" There—she had put it straight enough this time; she waited almost breathlessly for his answer to this. It meant so much to her, more than she liked to admit.

He did not answer for a second, then his face relaxed again into his slow smile, although rather as if he forced that wide grin of his than that it came spontaneously. "What is this?" he asked. "A third-degree? It might not be a matter of what I wanted to do, your honor. And, before you put me through any more on the witness stand, I might remind you that long ago, when we first met, I warned you you would have to take me as you found me and believe me to be what I told you I am."

"I did not say that I didn't believe in you," Karen returned, the faint color making her lovely face more lovely still. "I didn't mean it to sound like a third-degree. It's just, well, if I were a man, I'd be anxious to do my part."

"Like your Prince Charming," Marty broke in. "Which reminds me to say that he seemed a fairly decent sort, in spite of being so perfect. I always suspect perfection, you see, my lily maid. And I am equally pleased that you do not happen to be a man."

Karen knew he was deliberately not only trying to turn the conversation into different channels, but he was trying to make her angry. "Paul doesn't pretend perfection; he has his faults the same as everyone has. But at least he is honest about them."

"Meaning that I'm not," Martin said. The smile left his face again. "I'm sorry, Kay, but you'll have to accept me as I am, too, or not at all. I think it's very fine of you to believe in me, if you are sure you do."

She should still have been angry, but there was such honesty in his eyes now, in the directness of that statement, in spite of its indirectness, that she found she did believe in him. She said, "I do, but maybe there are others who won't. What I mean is, Marty, people are so apt to believe the worst of other people. And I think you ought to know that there are some doubts about you and what you really are down here. I'm not just saying this. I happen to know, although I cannot tell you how, that you are being watched."

She had not known that she would tell him that, and that it had been part of her reason for coming to see him, although now, as she told him, she knew it had been. She had not promised Paul that she would not warn Marty, although Paul had taken it for granted she would not. She had to warn him. If Martin was headed for trouble of any kind, she could not stand by and not do that much.

He did not have anything to say to that for a short while, either. His face still was thoughtful and serious. But he reached over and took Karen's two hands in his; his blue eyes looked into hers. "Thank you, my dear," he said quietly, "for telling me that. Not because I am in any danger, but because if it is, I prefer to be aware of it and because your telling me shows that you do believe in me."

At his touch Karen's heart had leaped into her throat; she wanted to withdraw her hands from his, yet could not. She could not explain the commotion within herself; it was such a mixture of joy and relief, apprehension and fear.

"I'm going to have to ask you to go on that way," he went on, "believing in me, accepting me and whatever I do on trust. It seems," he gave a little grimace at this, "I must keep on asking that of you in regard to everything."

She knew he referred now to that moment in the tower. So he had not forgotten it; it had meant something to him, as it had to her. It must have been triumph that caused her heart to beat so wildly now. But this was not safe—this was dangerous—to be here alone with Martin, his hands holding hers. She did withdraw her own, if reluctantly. She would show him this time that she could be the stronger of the two.

She said, "I'll go on that way as long as you ask it of me." Only yesterday she had told Paul that she would go on, as before, with him. It seemed she must have faith in two men, rather than in one of each separately.

Martin said again, "Thank you." He left off the "my dear" he had added before. But it held as much sincerity, as much tenderness. Then he changed his mood, with the lightning capacity of which only he was master, becoming his usual gay, charming self, adopting, too, the old gay mockery. "I believe the way to the feminine heart is via a uniform. But, even in war, Kay, we cannot all wear gold buttons and insignia. Your airman certainly does himself proud in his, even if it's not regular Army yet. And while we are on that subject, I hope you won't shed your feminine appeal for a uniform of any sort. The reaction is exactly the opposite with a man. His heart beats a much faster rat-a-tat-tat when he glimpses a gal in a pretty get-up like the blue you're doted up in now, matching your eyes and complemented by a soft rose scarf like you've got around your neck to match the roses in your cheeks, than it does if the same lovely appears in some regulation get-up."

Karen smiled, amused at the eloquence he poured into that rather over-long speech. Smiling, too, because of what her answer was. "I am to get my Red Cross uniform next week. Ambulance Corps. I just passed my examination. And our station wagon is to be turned over to the outfit, too." She laughed at the dismay on Marty's expressive face. "It's really a honey, the uniform, gray-blue and man tailored. And the duckiest little cap I ever wore. I'm terribly sorry you won't think my blue eyes as blue, or my cheeks as near like roses—that WAS a speech, coming from Marty, at that!" "But I think I shall look quite nice in it, truly I do."

"Woe is me," Marty said, rolling his eyes comically. "Yet maybe 'tis better thus. My poor old heart is weak enough as it is. Remember, I warned you once not to tamper with it, captain. I was only telling you facts, however. Science has proved what I just said by a tiny apparatus affixed to that temperamental organ. A woman's beats twice as rapidly when a male appears in military attire; a man's slows down just as noticeably when a sweater-girl dons any garment fashioned to uniformity. But science and hearts are funny things."

"They certainly are," Karen could agree whole-heartedly with that. But her own heart had taken a tumble from its recent high heights. She suddenly had remembered what it was she had read—no, she had heard it just the other day over the radio—about diathermy machines. The government had issued an order that every one was to be registered, for a diathermy machine could be converted into a short-wave sending set.

She wondered if Martin had heard that particular broadcast, and if he possibly could have been using his big diathermy machine for any such purpose as short wave. He had not been using it for a health treatment. He had been not only taken by surprise, but noticeably disturbed, when she had found him engaged with it.

Plenty o' Hutton - - She's To Be Actress Too

By CLAYTON IRWIN

NEW YORK—Betty Hutton is still screaming like a paddy-wagon full of pie-eyed Indians, but you can expect the noise to subside any day now.

She's about to become an actress—a grown-up, glamorous creature bearing only incidental resemblance to the madcap blonde singer who has made more faces, burned up more calories and blasted more microphones than any comparable performer in the business.

At this point, it may be well to quiet the fears of Hutton fans who like her the way she's been for the past five years. On the information of Betty herself, "I'll never get away from swing eternally—it's the best thing I do."

Transformations

The story of 22-year-old, Battle Creek, Michigan-born Betty is one of transformations. She started out eight years ago as an ordinary singer, with none of the screwball gesticulations and ear-splitting delivery that trademark her now. Those came later, quite by accident, the night Betty was about to be fired from a band because she lacked color.

"I got mad," she relates, "and figured 'What have I got to lose?'"

When it went over with the band and the customers, I was as surprised as anybody. I didn't get fired, and I kept up the act."

She landed thereafter in a couple of Broadway shows, and though she never got a chance to act, the route led inevitably to Hollywood. There, her first parts were more of the same, a couple of typical Hutton songs in typical Hutton style.

Tops With Jitterbugs

With the jitterbug set she was tops, but she soon developed a constant, smouldering feud with the critics, who displayed elaborate unconcern in what she did, and how she did it.

There is, now, a trace of rancor in Betty's picturesque conversation when she talks about her critics.

"Look, I get 400 fan letters a week, mostly from soldiers and sailors and young kids in the small towns. I've found out enough about the movie business to know that these are the people that help turn up the profits on a film."

"Suppose the big-town critics like me and the kids don't. Pretty soon the studio looks at the balance sheet and says 'O. K., Hutton, you go into "B" pictures.' Now who'm I going to try to please, the critics or the people who write me letters?"

The Hutton Tradition

Her biggest opportunity to act came in her latest picture, in which there was just enough jiving to keep the Hutton tradition alive. Soon comes a picture in which she plays the role of the late Tex Guinan, and Betty is ready to gamble it will make the critics take notice.

250 Fathers In County Are Now Being Reclassified

NOTICES SENT AS PLANS MADE TO INDUCT MEN

Men Married Since Pearl Harbor Are the Same as Unmarried Men

During the past few days over 250 fathers of draft age in Fayette County have been sent notices tentatively removing them from the class they have been in and placing them in Class 1, so they can file occupational information or immediately get into essential production work. It is a new set-up and unless those receiving notice have already complied with the requirements or do so immediately, they will be subject to call for induction about October, it was indicated by Chairman J. M. Willis, of the Fayette County Selective Service Board. The men inducted will be taken in sequence of their order numbers, it is indicated. As result of the notices sent out, the fathers included in the list are now filing the information asked for and if they can not show they are in essential industry, will be placed in Class 1-A. It was also stated that after all single men and married men who are not fathers have been inducted, the fathers will be next in line for induction. The men themselves or their employers are expected to file their 42-A information without delay. It is pointed out that farmers are not included who are entitled to 2-C or 3-C classifications. "Single men" includes men who were married after Pearl Harbor, whether they have children or not.

PIPELINE BREAK DRENCHES FARM

10,000 Barrels Wasted in Pipeline Fissure in Pennsylvania

Operation troubles of the "big inch" pipeline which crosses Fayette County have started and a break in the line near Doylestown, Pa., Thursday, caused 10,000 barrels of crude oil to spread on a farm before the break was detected. Farmhands who found the break said it was 18 inches long and two to three inches wide and oil was shooting into the air forming a miniature lake. Authorities at Phoenixville said the break would not affect the branch line of the "big inch" extending from Phoenixville to Marcus Hook, Pa. Pumping operations on the broken line were halted immediately while repair crews were dispatched to the scene of the break.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR HOUSING OF PIPELINE CREW

Civilian Defense Council To Help Solve Problem For 300 Workers

By the time the 300 workers, some bringing their families, on the "little inch" pipeline arrive here, most of them will have a place to stay if the plans made at a meeting of the Washington C. H. Civilian Defense Executive Committee work out successfully. About 200 rooms and apartments are needed.

Mrs. Earl McVey is to act as a go-between for prospective tenants and landlords. Anyone having a room or apartment available for renting during the month of September is "strongly urged" by the Civilian Defense Council to notify Mrs. McVey either at the City Building, phone 33151, or at her home, phone 26931.

The housing situation here will be critical, Civilian Defense authorities say, and much confusion and hub-bub may be avoided if a clear picture of facilities may be had before the flow of workers into the city. A number of single rooms will be needed for workers who do not bring their families, and for workers accompanied by their families, apartments, preferably with cooking facilities or access to a kitchen, will be needed.

Mrs. McVey will take applications of the workers for rooms and when she has a complete list of available places for them to stay, the Council pointed out, the task of housing the 300 men and their families will be made much easier.

City School Superintendent A. B. Murray has been put in charge of a survey of the city to find rooms, the Council revealed. Teachers and school employees here will be asked to make a survey of the neighborhood in which they live and to report any rooms or apartments which might be used to house workers.

The situation is much the same as several months ago when workers for the "big inch" pipeline poured into the city seeking places to stay. Some workers have already been here to obtain rooms and the number will be increasing steadily from now until September 1, when work is slated to begin.

The "little inch" pipeline will parallel the "big inch" line already laid across the country. The pipeline which will be laid is to carry gasoline from Beaumont, Texas to the East Coast.
